

I am super excited to recognize this student as the March Marauder of the Month. This sweet, conscientious student is sure to put a smile on your face when you see them in the hallway or in class. This month's Marauder has made a great transition from middle school to high school. They have worked hard to keep their grades above proficient even when busy playing sports.

When I suggested nominating this student for Marauder of the Month, Ms Loiselle immediately responded with "great choice!" She is excited about this month's choice because she believes this Marauder embodies our courage value by asking questions when she needs help. She also shares that this student's questions usually help other classmates to better understand concepts.

Mr. Skartsen also agreed with this choice and shares that this Freshman has a great work ethic and encourages her peers to get their work done. He feels her sense of humor is infectious!

Ms. McBride shares that in Spanish class, this student is always willing to participate and cares about her learning and getting good grades. She also shares that this student even volunteered to be first with the song memorization assignment when every other student was begging to go last.

Ms. Acharya describes our Marauder as delightful, respectful, helpful and intrinsically motivated in both academic and extracurricular activities. She shares that our student brings positive vibes in Freshman Academy and TA classes and that she is honored to be her TA.

Across the board, this Freshman encompasses our Marauder values of courage, compassion and curiosity. It is with great pleasure that this month's Marauder of the Month goes to Mary Yacavoni.
