

It is an honor to have the opportunity today to speak on the behalf of this April's marauder of the month. This is a student who not only relentlessly pursues excellence in every aspect of their life but also maintains a standard for themselves higher than any bar set for them. These two qualities are unique to find in one individual person. Many people have neither, some have one, but rarely anybody has both. This same student enters into all classrooms with an unmatched level of curiosity. The questions they ask, the comments they make, even the way they nonverbally communicate represents their commitment to curiosity and the lifelong pursuit of knowledge.

I by no means am the only person who sees this student in this way. I have a few quotes I would like to read from some other staff members.

"This student is one of the most courteous, helpful, studious, and fun students we have at NMHS."

"It is awesome to have a student in my class who is the epitome of maturity"

"I love how this student smiles and is never in a bad mood. Their performance is never affected by their classmates or whatever adversity is happening in their life. They truly embody what it means to be the Marauder of the month".

None of these compliments should be taken lightly. I truly believe this student has made a forever lasting impact on Northfield middle/high school.
